WTT FEATURE GUEST INTERVIEW

Spencer Burke

Spencer is a man of metaphors. "KINDLING" describes his approach to speaking and consulting. He sparks new thought and conversation in his audience and clients through his innovative thinking, humor, compassion and use of arts and technology. Whether he's talking to 10 or 10,000, he encourages people to view their business and relationships in new ways and they always walk away ablaze with the possibilities. Spencer also started the new image art site Monotations.com.

“CAVEPAINT” is an ancient tool used to express the stories of the soul. Spencer’s always been fascinated with individual and collective spiritual stories and has chronicled these through his photography. His work has been collected, exhibited at galleries, and he has taught photography at the University level. Spencer co-founded the short film festival exploring spiritual themes, Damah. In the 1990s he created TheOOZE.com, a safe online community for a diverse faith-based population to connect through articles, message boards and social networking.

This community has grown to include over 150,000 monthly visitors from 90 countries. Spencer is author of the book, Making Sense of Church, where he contrasted his 22 years as a pastor in a traditional church with eight years of exploring emerging, non-traditional metaphors. Spencer has been described as a “HERETIC.” After achieving more than he dreamed as a teaching pastor at a mega-church, Spencer refocused on his original desires to love, serve, and live a grace-filled life.

Spencer lives out his faith with what the Los Angeles Times called a “church with no name.” Spencer developed ETREK, collaborative learning groups that challenge the individual, competitive traditional educational values. Spencer also initiated Friends of God’s Golden Acre in the United States, to raise awareness and funds for a South African organization committed to loving, educating and supporting those affected by the AIDS epidemic, especially the most vulnerable. SpencerBurke.com is his latest adventure, where he’s looking for new ways to evolve.

Spencer lives with Lisa, his wife of 20 years, and children, Alden (nine) and Grace (five) in Southern California.

New Book: Making Sense of Church

<http://www.theooze.com/msoc/>

<http://www.TheOOZE.com> - Conversation for the Journey. Our desire is to create environments where church leaders (traditional teachers/theologians as well as emerging storytellers/artists) can converse about and collaborate on resources and experiences for the broader faith community. This is done by providing places for people to gather and communicate both online and offline about how to walk in the way of Jesus in our emerging culture.

Interview Conducted By Branon Dempsey and Derek Williams

1. What are the non-negotiable of the Christian faith?
Which sense is missing in today's church culture?

2. Among the present church generation, what does a non-1 Hour Event look like? How do we break the present 1 hour event? Is the answer found in church models, being emergent or is it just plain being weird?

Do we keep re-investing into the 1 Hour Event?

3. What is the role and response of today's pastor in the emerging church?
" " same question for worship leader:
- how do we relate/identify and nurture our congregations?

4. What does worship look like in the emerging church and how can it be valued?
What happens if churches and worship do not emerge?

Are they feelings of love - love from or worry, fear and anxiety - that's not from the fruit of the Spirit.

5. Conclusion?
