1. Baylor Alleluia Conference in Waco (Wayco) Texas

July 20-23, 2010

<http://www.baylor.edu/alleluia/>

In a recent poll, the job of music minister was ranked as one of the top ten stressful jobs in the country. The Alleluia Conference is designed to equip and inspire ministers in all areas of their ministry. At the conference participants have the ability to find answers and advice on their own church situations from experienced practitioners of ministry.

This year's conference will feature our own Branon Dempsey of Worship Team Training; he will be teaching on worship teams, leadership, worship and will also lead band and vocal coaching sessions. Other guests include Marva Dawn, Michael Burkhardt and many more over this 4 day extended conference in beautiful Waco Texas.

Register today by finding the link in the show notes: <https://www.baylor.edu/alleluia/index.php?id=70538>

Sally Morgenthaler

www.slingshotgroup.net (worship staff placement)

www.SacredRemix.com

Sally Morgenthaler is recognized as an innovator in Christian practices worldwide. Since 1992, she has been pioneering worship forms that balance cultural relevance with worship faithfulness. Known best for her book, Worship Evangelism (Zondervan, 1998), Morgenthaler became a trusted entrepreneur of postmodern culture and a guide to the crucial shifts the North American church must make if it is to become a transforming presence within post-Christian communities.

Her prophetic role among church leaders and local congregations continues to increase as her work broadens into the crucial arena of leadership. Morgenthaler's analysis of leadership trends appears in The Emergent Manifesto of Hope (April 2007, Baker Books). Her chapter, "Leadership in a Flattened World" describes the cultural shift toward profound collaboration, inviting ministry leaders to move beyond the top-down leadership models of the 1980s and 1990s, Morgenthaler has taught at seminaries and universities across the country, including Yale University, Asbury Seminary, Bethel Seminary, Denver Seminary, Fuller Theological Seminary, George Fox Seminary, Gordon Conwell Seminary, Mars Hill Graduate School, Baylor University, and Texas Christian University. She consults regularly with publishing houses, worship industry leaders, and church architects.

Spencer Burke

<http://www.TheOOZE.com> - Conversation for the Journey. Our desire is to create environments where church leaders (traditional teachers/theologians as well as emerging storytellers/artists) can converse about and collaborate on resources and experiences for the broader faith community. This is done by providing places for people to gather and communicate both online and offline about how to walk in the way of Jesus in our emerging culture.

Technomadies http://ko-kr.facebook.com/technomadic?v=app\_2347471856

Technomadies (both church and unchurch) are holistic, relative, hybrid believers. This means they do not hold to the tribal boundaries of their agrarian ancestors (parents). Instead, they are continually mixing and remixing different expressions of spirituality to inform their own practice of faith. Instead of arguing with differing views or protecting a single spiritual territory, they are building collaborative relationships and discovering new hybrid expressions. This multi-tribal mix is generating discussion rather than discord, generative friendships rather than enemies, understanding rather than name-calling and fear.

In summary, to separate church attendees as a separate demographic would be a mistake when looking into the future. There is simply not “a world of difference.” There is a gap, but it is not between the church and the world. Rather, it is between the Agrarian way of life and the Technomadic. The future church is Technomadic, which means, it is in the world and of the world God is inviting it to. And, as a parallel dynamic, the world is in the church and of the church when connected to the mission God is inviting it to.

What we have is a bedrock shift in the way we seek and define significance.

Technomadies find significance in:

- Relational Proximity
- Stewardship
- Collaborative Process
- Holistic, relative, hybrid, movement

Podcast Panel Topics

Are We Connecting?

1. Where are we today as a Church? What have been some of the recent trends to get us where we are today?

- Beta Stage?
- not being afraid of transformation
- to be embraced rather than feared
- remix? across all boundaries
- ownership issues
- democratization

2. How is church worship reflected in these movement trends of the church - who has suffered, who has survived, who will be left?

Spiritual Vertigo?

3. Leadership, where are we heading? What will the worship service look like? Who will we reach as a Church versus who has already left?

heading to a remix

- the ability to bring a gift to the table

4. What is your final thought for Worship Leaders and Teams in how to prepare for this future we are moving towards?
